Access Control Systems

Access control is the key to systems integration. Today's computer-based security systems allow the interface of products and services such as card access, badging, closed circuit television (CCTV) and alarm management.

Koorsen Fire & Security works with various quality manufacturers to offer you a wide range of access control systems. Each system is designed to grow as your needs grow – from controlling a single door to a complex system controlling hundreds of doors miles apart.

Access control puts YOU in complete charge of all access and exit activities at your building. You decide who may enter, where and when. You determine the days of the week and the times that your employees, staff, faculty or students may enter the facility. Access control avoids the cost and inconvenience associated with rekeying locks when changes in personnel occur.

Seamless Networked Systems

Today's access control systems allow you to interface and combine the data from multiple systems into one seamless networked system.

- Intrusion
- H.R. systems
- Digital badging
- Asset tracking
- CCTV
- Fire systems

Our access control systems are compatible with a wide range of card reader technologies including keypads, proximity, magnetic stripe, bar code, Weigand interface and smart card technology.

Koorsen Fire & Security utilizes the latest open architecture platforms to ensure seamless networking of multiple facilities (often by using the clients LAN or WAN networks) for efficient, cost effective solutions.

Our goal is to provide high quality service and personalized attention to every client, every time. If you have an existing access control system, we can provide the needed maintenance. Our technicians have been trained by the leading access control manufacturers. We can assist you in keeping your system running smoothly – with everything from adjusting locking devices to rebuilding software files and performing back ups.

We would be happy to talk with you regarding your current and future access control systems needs, and recommend the most cost effective solution.
